CASH Expo – Credit and Savings Help

SALT LAKE COUNTY - The current economic situation has left many Utahans feeling increased stress and nervousness in terms of financial matters. With investments shrinking, job losses and an uncertain housing market many have wondered what they can do to wade these troubled times. The state of Utah has many resources and opportunities available for members of the community. One of these resources is the upcoming CASH Expo—Credit and Savings Help. This is an exciting event that will be taking place at the South Towne Expo Center, 9575 South State Street in Sandy, UT. The Expo will begin at noon, ending at 9:15pm, and include Spanish and teen tracks. This event is FREE and open to the public and press.

The CASH Expo will offer over forty-five different classes. These classes range from budgeting to investments. There will also be classes on foreclosure prevention and credit card management. The CASH Expo also has several youth and Spanish classes being offered. To see a full list of the classes offered see www.utahcashexpo.com.

In addition to several breakout classes, there will be two keynote speakers at the event. Kelley Matthews, Wells Fargo, will open the event at noon with an address on the current economic situation and what it means for community members. Later in the afternoon at 3:30pm Bill Gephardt, Channel 2 News, will speak to patrons on consumer decisions.

To reserve a seat for this educational opportunity register at www.utahcashexpo.com. Patrons may also show up on May 15 to attend the event without registering, but capacity is limited to 1500. The CASH Expo will be back to back with the Career Expo. Information on the Career Expo can be found at www.utahjobexpo.com.

The CASH Expo is just one of many exciting resources available to those struggling and wanting to learn more. To find more resources and opportunities pertaining to financial and housing matters call 2-1-1, Utah's information and referral hotline for community resources.
